Dear Friends of Heywood Healthcare,

As a community healthcare system, we are committed to being a champion of health and wellness for our communities. In this issue of A Healthy You, you’ll get an inside look at the many new programs and community initiatives that Heywood Healthcare is leading to promote lifestyle changes that prevent diseases like diabetes, an epidemic in our region.

We have expanded our Diabetes Self-Management Education program to Athol Hospital. This program, modeled after the one at Heywood Hospital, is designed to evolve conventional treatment for diabetes to a more comprehensive and holistic program of education, support and counseling focused on lifestyle changes that improve health and manage disease.

At Heywood Hospital, in addition to many cosmetic facility updates taking place, we are in the midst of creating a leading edge cardiovascular wing, adjacent to the new home of Diabetes and Nutrition Services on the second floor of our Center for Outpatient Services (COS) located at the South Entrance, so patients may be seen by multiple providers in one area of the hospital.

We continue to make big changes outside our walls, too. Heywood Hospital introduced its new “Patients First” parking program last October – reserving 120 parking spaces closest to the COS exclusively for patients – reaffirming our commitment to patient-centered care. Next spring, there will be a solid parking canopy comprised of solar panels that will not only provide protection from the elements for approximately 250 parking spaces and pathways to our main entrance, but will also provide 30% of Heywood’s power supply and include outlets for electric vehicles.

We opened the doors of our new Partial Hospitalization Program (PHP) at Heywood in December and have already seen positive responses from patients. Supported with funding provided by the Department of Mental Health, the PHP provides patients with behavioral health needs access to intensive outpatient psychiatric therapy, nursing, mental health therapy, social services and life coach group sessions daily, while allowing them to return to a home setting in the evening. This program is one of many Heywood Healthcare efforts to expand access to behavioral health services in our region.

As our partnership continues to evolve, you will find more and enhanced services available throughout our healthcare family. Our goal is to provide patients with local healthcare that not only focuses on current community health needs, but also anticipates the future of quality healthcare and makes it available, accessible and affordable for all.

Your Partner in Health,

Win Brown
President & CEO, Heywood Healthcare

The unrelenting pace of technological innovation is constantly changing how consumers, communities, businesses and even nations engage with each other. In the dynamic world of healthcare, innovative technology is more than sophisticated diagnostic and treatment tools and techniques that improve patient care. Increasingly, technological sophistication means allowing the transfer of vital information between patients and providers.

Heywood Hospital is about to take a vital first step to empower patient information access with a new online patient portal. Consistent and compliant with “meaningful use” mandates set forth by the U.S. government, intended to assure optimum patient care coordination among providers, Heywood’s patient portal will allow patients to easily and securely access key information from their medical record.

“Patients discharged from either our Emergency Department or a medical or surgical unit often need follow-up care from their physician or another provider, or they may have a significant medical event where providers require vital information from a patient’s Heywood record to make the best care decisions,” explains Carol Roosa, Chief Information Officer and VP of Information Services for Heywood Healthcare. “This patient portal puts information at patients’ fingertips, when they want it or need it.”

Key components of a patient’s health record include information about allergies, home medications and recent hospital inpatient admissions. The portal will also show upcoming appointments at the hospital for services such as mammography, physical therapy and outpatient surgery.

“Our goal is to help patients communicate most efficiently and effectively with their physicians, and to empower them with the tools they need to manage their health and well-being collaboratively,” says Roosa.

How patients can sign up

Starting June 1st, patients may access the Heywood Patient Information Portal (HPIP) at www.heywood.org. An email address and Heywood Medical Record Number are required to register for the HPIP. If you do not know your medical record number, you may obtain it by visiting the Medical Records Department at Heywood Hospital, Monday-Friday, from 8:00 am-4:30 pm. A picture ID is required for identity verification.

Proxys – allowing a caregiver to access record

Patients over age 18 may allow loved ones or caregivers to have access to their portal. Patients can request a “proxy” form from our Medical Records Department to secure access for another adult.

Simple patient portal registration

For more information on registering to use the new Heywood Hospital Patient Information Portal, please call the Medical Records Department at 978-630-6242 or visit www.heywood.org.
In the United States, and locally, Type 2 Diabetes has reached epidemic proportions. What makes diabetes such an unusual disease is that it also has a direct link to heart disease, the leading cause of death. The connection between diabetes, heart disease and stroke has to do with high blood sugars. Diabetes is a condition of high blood sugars and the damage it causes to the human body.

High blood sugars cause the human body to wear down. This wearing down of the body makes people susceptible to nerve damage, problems with skin breakdown, permanent vision changes, kidney disease and eventually to an increased risk for heart disease and stroke.

Diabetes works in a silent, but deadly way. It is not only the 7th leading cause of death in the nation, its accompanying damage to the body can lead to amputation, blindness, kidney disease, heart disease and stroke. It maims by causing nerve damage and skin lesions so severe that people must have limbs amputated. It causes blindness and leads to stroke, heart disease, and kidney disease.

According to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control (CDC), there are nearly 3,000 residents in the greater Athol region who have diabetes, including more than 1,200 who have the disease but don’t know it. An additional 10,300 Athol adults are “pre-diabetic,” with lifestyles and risk factors that pre-dispose them to the development of this dangerous, often debilitating disease.

The good news is that diabetes can be successfully managed. Recent studies suggest Type 2 diabetes can often be delayed from it’s development and in some cases actually prevented through proper nutrition and fitness. That’s why Athol Hospital recently launched the Diabetes Self-Management Education Program, a comprehensive approach to empowering patients diagnosed as diabetic or
If you are among the 66% of Americans who are overweight, you’re at risk for diabetes – a dangerous disease that comes on slowly and quietly, which can often be prevented. “Knowledge is power, and people who understand their risk can prevent diabetes with some simple lifestyle changes,” says Miller.

Know your risk
If you are overweight, inactive and/or if your doctor tells you your blood sugar is elevated, pay attention. Now is the time to act.

Start moving
Exercise not only boosts metabolism and releases endorphins that improve mood, but it is essential to improving circulation, regulating blood sugar and losing weight.

The key is to make exercise a regular part of daily activity, even if you start slowly. Simply going for a brisk 10 to 20 minute walk every day can dramatically improve your health and reduce your risk, especially when activity is combined with healthy eating habits.

Make healthy food choices
Nutritional guidelines to manage diabetes risk are proven to improve health and well-being all-around. Healthy food is commonly regarded as boring, expensive and difficult to prepare, but in reality healthy food choices are easy, cost-efficient and in the long-run, can prevent the need for costly medications, doctor’s visits, hospitalizations and worse.

Some tips
- 5 servings of fruit a day can satisfy any sweet tooth
- Enjoy bread, cereal and pasta but make sure that 50% of the product is made from whole grains
- Eat more protein, choosing lean cuts of chicken, turkey, or fish, pork and beef
- Add “superfoods” that are power-packed with nutritional value and tasty to your diet – green leafy vegetables, nuts, beans, low fat yogurts, berries and sweet potatoes
- Limit your intake of ‘concentrated sugars’ including cookies, cakes, candy, pie, ice cream, and soda

In addition to launching Athol’s new program, Caron and Miller are collaborating on plans to encourage diabetes prevention through community outreach. A new program being developed in conjunction with the Athol YMCA is a CDC-compliant diabetes prevention/education program.

“The Athol YMCA would seek to have their program certified to teach the skills shown to delay or prevent the start of diabetes, and we would work with the Y and local physicians to identify people who are pre-diabetic,” explains Miller. “Our goal would be to reach out and engage these individuals in a 16-week series of classes at the Y that teach them how to lose weight, exercise and make healthy food choices that could delay or prevent diabetes and possibly even save their lives.”
Having a baby is a highly anticipated and exciting experience. Expectant mothers seek birth plans that offer a customized birthing experience, focusing on their health needs and personal expectations. At Heywood Hospital’s LaChance Maternity Center, expectant mothers are empowered through personalized birthing options that provide the essential balance between clinically excellent care and the miraculous and memorable birth experience they desire.

"Experienced moms will tell you that no two births are alike, and having clinical expertise and supportive care during the birthing process is what makes labor safe and optimally comfortable," says Karen Beaton, Director of Maternity Services. “Our entire team works together to assure laboring mothers have the care, attention, support and options that can empower them to have a level of control as the birthing process unfolds.”

LaChance’s maternity team is comprised of highly skilled obstetricians, anesthesiologists and pediatricians, anchored by an expert team of nurses who serve as the link that unites clinical excellence with the center’s philosophy of personalized care, safety and comfort. Each expectant mother who enters the maternity center has a nurse who is devoted to her care throughout the birth and delivery process, assuring she receives the supportive care and assistance she needs through every stage of labor.
For new mom Amanda Maylin, who welcomed her first child, Shaela, after 40 hours of labor, having information, reassurance and choices allowed her to make decisions and adapt her experience as her labor progressed. “I never felt like I was alone or not in control, even when I was faced with the possibility of a c-section when I wasn’t progressing as fast as we had hoped,” Maylin recalls.

One of the single most important areas of choice for an expectant mother is comfort and pain control, and LaChance offers a wide array of options available during labor. Among the most popular and unique choices for mothers at LaChance are doulas. Doulas are specially trained labor assistants who provide continuous care for mothers and their partners during labor, offering physical and emotional support, and information about the birth process, comfort and pain management options and available technology.

“Our doula program is an extremely valuable and important aspect of our birthing approach,” says Beaton. “They don’t replace nurses but are an important part of the care team for mothers who want another woman with them for the duration of labor and delivery, who can provide support, answer questions and help assure they have what they need for the best possible experience.”

Maylin didn’t request a doula when she arrived in labor. “I didn’t think I needed a doula, but when she popped in to ask if I wanted her help after 26 hours of labor, I was grateful,” says Maylin. “I had hoped to deliver without pain medication but when I was ready to change my mind, she made me feel comfortable with my decision to have an epidural. She kept reassuring me it was OK to change my mind.”

Other techniques and therapies to help promote relaxation and comfort to laboring mothers include aromatherapy – a holistic treatment that uses botanical oils such as lavender, rose and chamomile – music therapy and hydrotherapy, where warm baths are used to promote comfort and even “speed up” labor in the later stages. For women who choose medication to ease their labor pain, Heywood offers the latest options. Anesthesiologists work with the laboring mother’s obstetrician and nursing staff to assure she can make informed choices among alternative medical therapies.

Heywood Hospital’s success in forging collaborative, supportive relationships between laboring mothers and their clinical team is evident in Heywood’s below average rate for caesarean sections. “C-section rates are an important indicator of quality care which reflects a hospital’s clinical commitment to performing the major surgery of a C-section only when truly necessary,” explains Jeffrey Blake, MD, an obstetrician at the Heywood Health Center for Women. “While our priority is always a safe delivery, regardless of the method used, our culture of non-intervention helps healthy mothers give birth to healthy babies in a relaxed, natural way. It is a coordinated effort from our physicians to our nurses to our midwives and volunteer Doulas. We work together to support mothers throughout the entire birthing process to eliminate the need for surgery whenever possible.”

In addition, LaChance Maternity Center’s VBAC (Vaginal Birth After Caesarean) Program helps mothers to deliver their babies vaginally even after a prior caesarean surgery. “It has been proven both here and nationally that in approximately two-thirds of the cases, mothers are able to have a successful vaginal birth after a previous caesarean,” said Dr. Blake. “We carefully screen our patients to select those mothers and infants that will benefit from the vaginal childbirth experience, and most VBACs we perform are highly successful.”

Women who are planning to become pregnant or are newly pregnant can tour LaChance Maternity Center to learn what Heywood Hospital has to offer, including prepared child birth classes and instruction, and pre-and- post delivery support for women who want to breast feed.

“Our goal for each patient is to assure they feel empowered and supported in making choices and decisions that are right for them. We want expectant mothers and their families to feel confident that our entire staff is committed to the most comfortable and safe delivery possible,” says Beaton. “Giving birth should be a joyous and life-affirming experience, and we are so grateful to our patients who tell us that we make that possible, that we deliver babies with excellence all around.”

The word “doula” comes from ancient Greek and means “woman who serves,” and at LaChance Maternity Center, every woman is offered, at no cost, the services of a woman specially trained and certified as a Doula. Expectant mothers may elect to have a doula when they arrive at the hospital or even during the labor process. Each doula is carefully selected and pre-screened, and certified after completing comprehensive training workshops that teach comfort measures, stages of labor, c-sections, labor induction and other aspects of the birth process. Studies have shown that when doulas attend birth, labors are shorter with fewer complications, babies are healthier and they breastfeed more easily.

“We have over 30 certified doulas who volunteer in our program,” says Beaton. “Many are women who had their babies with the support of a doula and want to ‘pay it forward’ with other mothers.”

When Heywood Hospital and Athol Hospital forged a strategic partnership just over one year ago, both organizations sought to leverage the best practices, clinical excellence and spirit of innovation that inspires staff to put patients first at both facilities. This collaboration has resulted in campus improvements, new programs and other initiatives that demonstrate how a healthy partnership is transforming the way patients experience healthcare.

“We realized a tremendous opportunity to explore ways to both expand vital clinical services, and how patients access and receive those services,” says Athol Hospital Chief Operating Officer Mike Grimmer. “With healthcare increasingly delivered in outpatient settings, we are investing in plans that expand needed clinical services while simultaneously adapting each facility to accommodate the changing face of hospital-based care.”

At Athol Hospital, planned improvements extend from new and expanded outpatient clinical services to dramatic changes to the inpatient floor of the hospital. These, says Grimmer, are just the beginning. “In addition to some more immediate changes that improve our patient’s ease of access at Athol, we are developing a longer-term facility master plan to assure we are prepared to serve our patients’ best interests well into the future,” he says. “This longer-term planning will explore where services such as oncology and day surgery should be located, and as we have done with prior planning at both Heywood and Athol, our process will engage staff in each area so we can make sure we are making the right decisions for patients.”

Improvements currently underway at Athol include the new Diabetes Self-Management Education Program, located in a newly remodeled area. The same area will also be the new home of Speech Language Pathology and Audiology. In a clinical wing already anchored by physical and occupational therapy and cardiology, patients will now have centralized, easy access to several of Athol’s most vital outpatient services.

Additionally, renovations to Athol Hospital’s front entrance and reception desk will assure patients and visitors experience a friendly, modern and inviting atmosphere from the moment they walk in the door. Right off the entrance, the hospital is also expanding and upgrading its primary conference room. Thanks to a gift from the Private rooms, new PT gym and dedicated occupational therapy offer comfort and easy care pathways for patients

Among Athol’s most dramatic improvements is the conversion of its semi-private inpatient rooms to 25 private rooms, the maximum number of beds allowed by Athol’s license as a critical access hospital. Of these, 17 rooms will include handicapped accessible bathrooms, with hand-railings, wide-width entryways and doors and other features that allow for the safety, comfort and convenience of patients with mobility challenges.

To further improve patients’ ease of access to necessary services, additional renovations on the inpatient floor will include a dedicated physical therapy gym and occupational therapy area, complete with kitchen, washer and dryer, and bathroom. These areas will be used by patients of Athol’s new Center for Rehabilitation and Skilled Nursing, an innovative program that allows inpatients to be “discharged” from acute care at the hospital and entered into a sub-acute program without leaving their bed, their room and the staff who have cared for them during their inpatient stay. With these new areas, patients who are recuperating from surgery, injury or illness will be able to access physical and occupational therapy without leaving the floor.

“Our goal with all of these improvements is to have care and care pathways that make sense for the patient,” says Grimmer. “For patients needing specialized PT or OT services, these areas will help patients regain strength and mobility and manage the functional activities of daily living, including self-care, navigating a kitchen and doing laundry.”

Power parking at Heywood

When Heywood Hospital introduced its new “Patients First” parking program last October — reserving 120 parking spaces closest to the COS exclusively for patients — the organization and its staff of approximately 1,000 were reaffirming their commitment to patient-centered care that extended beyond hospital walls. Next spring, patients will experience “protected” passage as Heywood Hospital installs a solid parking canopy comprised of solar panels leading to the front entrance. Not only will the solar canopy provide protection from the elements for approximately 250 parking spaces and pathways to the Emergency and Main Entrance, the structure will provide 30% of Heywood’s power supply. The parking structure will also include outlets for electric vehicles.

“We have always been diligent in pursuing green initiatives that assure we are true stewards of health,” says Grimmer. “With solar-panel covered parking, we are able to take environmental responsibility to a new level by providing our patients and visitors with safe and convenient passage to and from our hospital in a way that reflects responsible stewardship of our resources.”
